

Sea Language

There are more than a hundred languages in the world and those are only the official languages!! Groups of people often have their own groupings of word to form their own specific language. Think about the words that scouting uses that others wouldn't understand e.g. woggle!!! The "Caribbean" theme helps understand the how people communicate with each other. Just think about how sailors or pirates communicated with each other by using different words...

Getting Started...

Plan

- In the six plan an activity where they give a slang name to the equipment that they use and the jobs that are to be done
- Do up the list and make sure everyone knows it

Do

- Have a challenge with another six to see can that six work out the language.
- The six should try to use their new language as much as much as possible on the activity.
- The more they use it the easier it is to remember

Review

- When they are back from the activity see how they got on and if the language worked for them
- What words would they change or what would they add in

Resources:

- List of the new language

Top Tips

- Try learning a few phrases of a different language to use as the language for an activity.
- What about an "as gaeilge" activity?
