

KINGDOM OF THE CELTS

Celts told stories in their cave painting, like the Riddle on the Rocks. They loved puzzles and playing board games.

The Tailteann games were like the Olympic games of the Celtic world and was a community's celebration of its history and traditions.

Ogham Writing is a famous way of writing a message that had dashes in the rock to show letters. Sign language was also a common way of communicating

The Celts were great at working with metal. They made weapons, tools, and jewellery called torcs.

They cooked food in Fulacht Fia, which were holes in the ground. They filled these with hot stones to heat water for cooking.

Celts lived in raths, forts and Crannógs

The Celts celebrated festival at spring and harvest-time. Bards sang songs, performed poems, and stories.
